RECYCLING RECYCLAGE

AMAZONAS hammocks are woven in an environmentally friendly manner from recycled yarn.

Cotton: it sounds natural, like the good old days, like traditional high quality. Unfortunately, it is also true that cotton production places a heavy burden on the environment. Only 2.4% of the world's arable land is cotton planted, however, almost 25% of insecticides used worldwide, go on useful plants like the cotton plant!

Every tonne of cotton, believe it or not, requires 18,000 litres of drinking water. Drinking water which, in the arid regions in which it predominantly grows, such as Pakistan, Mali, China, and the Midwest of the USA, has much more pressing uses.

Less cotton plantations, therefore, mean more vital water for man and nature as well as less pesticides and insecticides in our environment.

Given such figures, it is even more painful to learn that a lot of leftover cotton is separated in textile production and is normally just thrown away.

AMAZONAS, however, uses a simple technique which processes such leftover fabrics, turning them back into yarn. As the fibres are shorter than before, they are stabilised by adding no more than 15% polyester thread. Only raw materials are used, the coloration of which meets the stringent requirements of textile category I (skin tolerance).

This is how AMAZONAS creates its coloured hammocks and helps to look after our planet's natural resources and protect the environment.

THE AMAZONAS TESTING COMPLEX:

if we develop a new product or make just small changes, every hammock, frame, rope, and hook is tested very carefully under heavy loads.

Der kleine Nazareno

Verein für Gerechtigkeit und Menschenwürde in Brasilien e.V.

AMAZONAS helps street children

In Brazil a pproximately 25,000 childr en live completely neglected in the str eets. Every day they fight for survival. To make a humane existence possible f or these childr en, the organization 'Der Kleine Nazareno e.V.' was established in 1994. And within the last ten y ears, two Nazareno villages were founded, which today offer a new home for more than 110 children.

These Nazareno villages situated outside the centr es of Fortaleza and Recife offer these children shelter in which they will be looked after around the clock. From the very first day on, they attend one of their o wn government-recognized schools with the option to attend a secondary school. Starting at age 15, schooling is supplemented with practical v ocational training. After that the children are supported in the search for employment, and accompanied step b y step until finall y they stand on their own feet.

'We fromAMAZONAS have personally taken a look at this aid pr oject on site , which has mo ved and convinced us so , that w e support it with an ann ual donation of 20,000 €. So we, and you as our customer, can not only provide work and progress through the hammock production to Brazil, but additionally create a future for Brazilian street children.'
